It's all a matter of FASHION

Does fashion really matter? "Fashion matters because it is a statement of the way you feel," said Brenda King Sr. "A person's personality can be expressed through different styles. Your style symbolizes who you are," said Stacie Fisher Sr. A fashionable appearance plays a very important part in the lives of students. Many students made it a top priority to keep up with the fast pace of incoming and outgoing trends. From friendship bracelets of thread to gaudy gems, fashion took on a variety of forms. This just goes to show, it's all a matter of fashion.

Individuality. Bill Aust Fr., Paul Seabolt Jr., Chris Combest Fr., Evan Bills, Fr., and Deanne Deitrick Sr. express their style of originality.

Seen often around the school are people wearing Wranglers and Ropers. This style is popular among Shannon Pate Fr., Jennifer Monday Jr., Robert Voirn Sr., and Brian Rickert Jr.

Brightly colored scarves become trendy accessories when worn with sweaters. Kim Clark Sr. and Chip Henley Sr. exhibit the "preppy" look.

Rallies Promote Spirit

Create Feelings Of Pride

Pep rallies have been a big tradition for a number of years. Senior, Doug Tracy said, "We should have pep rallies for every sport."

Traditionally, the pep rallies have been only for the Varsity Football team. A new tradition is honoring others. The Cross Country, Volleyball, and J.V. Football teams along with the Band were honored.

Despite this disagreement, most people agree that pep rallies do help the athletes. Senior, John Hackworth said, "Pep rallies promote school spirit in support of our athletic teams."

Pep rallies also give not just athletes, but the student body, a feeling of pride. "I get a feeling of pride every time we sing the alma mater. It is so great that I can't even describe it. It is also neat how the football players sing it too after being so emotionless during the whole pep rally," said Senior, Mary Kroenung.

Pep rallies get better as they promote more school spirit and unveil even more school pride.

A Moment of Excitement

A Lifetime of Memories

As the sun went down and the lights came on at Eagle Stadium, there was a buzz of excitement in the air and a wondering thought in everyone's mind. Senior Amy Lynn Smith, who represented the class of '88 as a homecoming princess all four years, said, "It was very special! I felt so honored by it, and it was a surprise every year."

While the teachers, students, parents, alumni, and future Eagles awaited the big announcement of king and queen, Lance Cook had other thoughts. The Senior said, "When I was standing out on the field, I decided that just being on the court was enough for me. After my name was announced for king, I was both surprised and excited."

The newly crowned queen, Stephanie Neal, said, "It was a moment of excitement and an honor to represent my high school."

As Lance Cook and Stephanie Neal surveyed their domain while circling the track, they and other members of the court gained special memories that they will hold in their hearts for a long time to come.

As they await their ride, Stephanie Neal and Lance Cook chat. They were presented during the first half of the game.

Celebration '87

A Definite Highpoint

In keeping with the Crowley tradition, students made Homecoming week a time of festivity and excitement. Celebration was in the hearts and minds of students and faculty. Tension built until it finally exploded. The explosion took place during Friday's pep rally. Everyone from freshmen to seniors participated in the loudest and most exciting pep rally of the year. Streamers, confetti, glitter, banners and purple shirts surrounded the gym floor for a celebration of unequalled strength. As Alicia Cox said, "This year's Homecoming was great. It was neat to look around and see people waving banners, yelling, and wearing purple-painted shirts. After the pep rally was over, many students could be seen with glitter all over themselves. It was simply great." The aftermath carried into the weekend and helped to make for a great game and dance. Homecoming '87 was definitely a highpoint in the year.

Close-up To U.S. Government

Students Travel To Washington

The United States government is a very complicated machine that very few people find easy to understand. The week of Veteran's Day nine curious Crowley students traveled to Washington D.C. to see what it is really all about.

The students attended seminars and met important government officials such as Representative Dick Army. They went sight seeing to places such as the Lincoln Memorial, the tomb of the unknown soldier and the Memorial Wall. All of the students say they had a wonderful time. They also met students from all over the country who shared in their interest in the way our governmental system worked. Even Mrs. Baker and Mrs. Campbell learned a few things of their own.

The night of December 3, the Close-up students got together again and shared their photos and special memories of the time they spent together in the nation's capitol. They had a few laughs and surely built memories that will last forever.

▼ Three men of different races, colors and creeds are pictured in this statue. It is a memorial to show that war does not discriminate.

► Veterans that risked their lives are not forgotten. One of the daily memorials that is put out to honor the soldiers who died in Vietnam.

Finally the day had come — the Senior Trip. The Seniors patiently waited through Baccalaureate practice anticipating the rest of the day. The Seniors were off to the busses at 10:30 a.m. while the underclassmen looked on with envy but their day would come. Once they reached 'Lil's Dude Ranch they were off; some straight to the pool, others to the volleyball net, and others to the horse shoes. At 2:00 p.m. lunch was served, corny dogs and fries. It was a restful day with friends. Dinner was served at 6:00 p.m. Bar-b-que, potato salad, and beans. At 7:00 p.m. it was time to head home. The memories from senior trip will never be forgotten and someday can be shared again with old friends.

A Change In Tradition

In the past years, the junior-senior prom has been at a hotel. This year our students were honored by being able to have their prom at the Colonial Country Club. This was the first prom the country club has allowed there in years. It was a little different having the prom at a country club but everyone had a great time. Everyone began showing up for the Grand March at 7:00 p.m. There were probably some of the best dressed couples in Fort Worth on April 23, 1988. The slide show brought back many memories when it showed at 10:30 p.m. on that special night. No meal was served but there was a buffet throughout the evening. The buffet consisted of steamship beef buffet, smokie sausages, sesame chicken strips, a variety of cheeses with crackers, a fresh fruit platter, finger sandwiches, assorted pastries and fruit punch. The prom song was "Why Can't This Night Go On Forever" by Journey. This year the juniors, seniors, and their sponsors seemed to have outdone themselves with the money they raised earlier in the year with magazine sales. Senior Liska Lewis recalls the evening by stating "It's sad to think about prom coming because it signals the end of the year but the magic of the night and the kind way everyone treats everyone makes it worth while."

Talonettes Take Sweepstakes

For the first time in history the hard work paid off. Of all the years we have had a drill team, this has been the first year they have shown their superior ability and won sweepstakes with it. They practiced long and hard to receive the honor of superior ratings from the judges during the contest in Galveston this year. The work began last year after tryouts when the new 87-88 drill team began practicing for camp in Oklahoma; there, they also received superior ratings. Next it was the Crowley Summer Camp where the girls learned three dance routines and also learned how to use flags. This was also the first year the Talonettes and the band joined forces, together to win fifth in State. To finish off the hard work through the year the Talonettes came in for practice at 7:00 in the morning Monday through Friday to practice for pep rallies, football games, basketball games, and contest.

Take No Prisoners

The Tradition Continues

"I think that it is becoming a tradition. The band directors taught us a lot about ourselves, so I think if we keep the feeling and the intensity up, the people in Austin will be seeing a lot of us," says Jr. James Kelsey.

What did the directors teach the band? Take no prisoners. Before every performance, they heard this from one of the directors meaning that the contest is a battlefield and the best wins.

"Everyone across the state knows who we are now," replied Sr. Randall Duncan. "Along with receiving top honors at state comes other honors such as being invited to appear at the state capital." The band marched at the 200th anniversary of the state on May 7.

The band plans to be at Austin again to take no prisoners. Jennifer Irby, Freshman, said, "If we follow our most important tradition — pride, unity and strength — we can be more successful each year."

Eagle Spirit Flies High!

The Varsity Cheerleaders are an elite part of the student body who are often envied because they have what most students consider to be the most fun position in the school. However, the cheerleaders might have something to say about that point of view, "... cheerleading is not all fun and games like everyone thinks." says Kara Hallan. Kate Yelverton also agrees, "From the moment you make the squad, you must fully dedicate yourself and be willing to work hard, give up a lot of free time and Friday nights, and go through a lot of pain."

Got That Eagle Spirit!

The J.V. Cheerleaders are hard-working, Freshman and Sophomore girls whose uplifting spirit is very important to the success of J.V. athletic teams. The girls spent many hours practicing and working overtime to come across well at the pep rallies and athletic events, "... you have to be willing to put all other things aside and think about cheerleading while you still have to keep your grades up," says Lisa Pustejovsky. Most students agree that the J.V. Cheerleaders are hard workers and they prove to be a great asset to the student body.

FTA and Student Council

Future Teachers of America had a year full of events. At the beginning of the school year, they welcomed each teacher back with a jar of "thoughts for the day" to last them throughout the year. They also awarded the student teachers with special gifts. Some of the FTA members went to the District Convention. They also went to the State Convention, held in Dallas, where Tracie Beasley won first place in the talent compe-

The officers include Susie Yerigan as President, Angie Wasden as Vice President, Rachel Graves as Treasurer, and Dee Richardson as Historian, with Mrs. Croft and Mrs. Wood as sponsors.

Viewing Another World

Seeking to better understand the French and Spanish speaking countries and their cultures were the main objectives for the Spanish and French Clubs.

The Spanish Club planned and participated in many activities. They made a float for homecoming, held various meetings, and had their annual Chili Cookoff and Supper. The French Club also had their share of activities with meetings and doughnut breakfasts.

The officers of these groups ranged from sophomores to seniors. The Spanish Club leaders were Ian Morfeld, Angie Warren, Christie Blackmon, Sherian Weiss, Michelle Thomas, and Candi Joseph. The French Club officers were Stacie Fisher, Julie Stacy, Rachel Grayson, and Diana Anderson.

Making It Happen

How does it happen? The yearbook, that is. Get twenty-one ambitious students and with the patience of a saint, a yearbook is done. Right? Wrong!

Take, for instance, the pictures on this page. A staff photographer took, printed, reprinted, until it was right. The copy had to be written, fitted, and approved. The graphics had to be designed. The people identified and the book sold.

That's not all. Some people wanted to be interviewed, some people not. Some people liked their picture taken, some people not. Some people cooperated, some people not.

Then, these twenty-one students and one advisor, sometimes loving it and sometimes hating it, finished it by June 1. Why do a thankless, payless, funless job?

"I love it. It can be fun!" — Alicia Cox, Sr.

"I really don't know." — Todd Klaver, Sr.

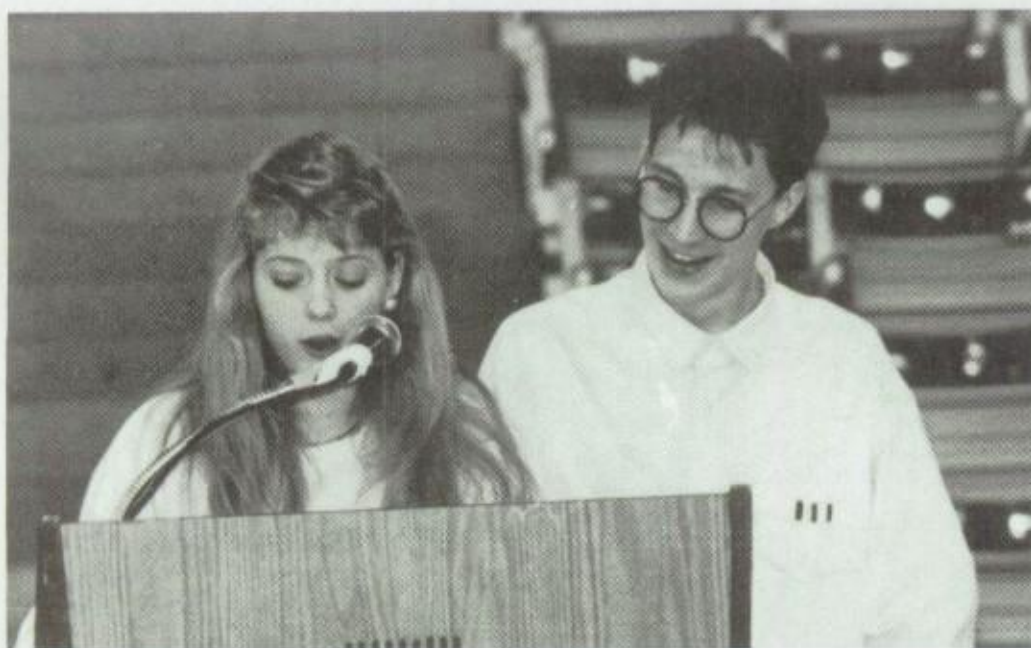

"It is fulfilling. It makes you feel like you are doing something worthwhile that all the students will enjoy." Stacie Fisher, Sr.

"It has its ups and downs. It's fun until the deadlines." — Dee Richardson, Sr.

All in all, it happened. We worked hard and played hard.

Close Ties was the production performed by an excellent cast in One Act. It is a play about the issue of senility and how it affects the elderly and their loved ones. Many different opinions from various characters and personal relationships within the family are expressed on this issue in Close Ties. Eagles Win Zone Championship

It was a great experience, but from the start of the season, I expected to win. Starting with a new team was tough. I feel the Freshman team had a very positive year. We lost some close games to good teams and defeated good teams. I feel the team is headed for an excellent Varsity Team. — Johnny Isom

Big start, weak finish

I feel that at the beginning of the season we had a strong chance at being number one. But as the season progressed, the lack of team unity and harsh feelings took over that chance. Throughout the seasons we had many adjustments that were hard for the team to get used to.

— Connie Stephens

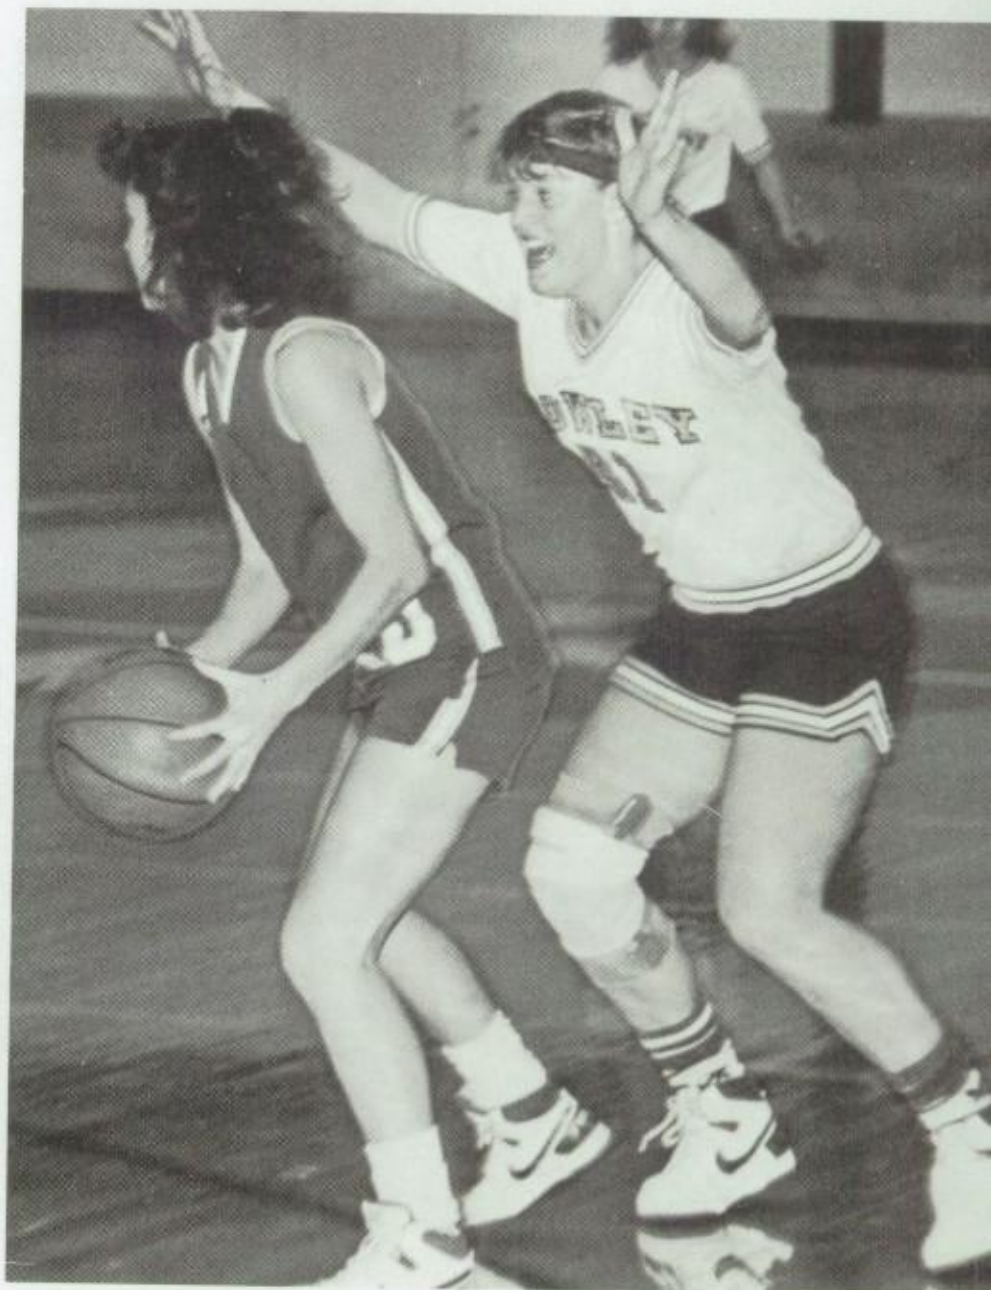

For our team to start out as good as we did, it certainly was a disappointing season to end as it did. Most of our players had to make the transition from J.V. to Varsity. By the time we could play well together, it was too late.

Great Beginnings

Unless a team goes undefeated, I don't believe that a coach can consider his/her team completely successful. Although we did not go undefeated, we had a winning season with an overall record of 16-7. Many personal goals and team goals were reached so that the season was enjoyable, and in many ways, successful. We did not do as well in district (4-6) as we had hoped, but many of the games were quite close. The whole team responded well throughout the season in tight situations. Victories in the first 7 or 8 games gave the team confidence; this confidence should carry over to the next three years of their athletic careers.

Playoff Bound

We just had a group of people who played the best we could and that's what made us successful.

Jr. Jamie Whiteside

It was very disappointing to lose to Brewer the way we did. We fought hard the whole day. It really hurts the way it ended. It meant a lot to the seniors.

Sr. Brad Phillips

I think that the team was very successful in that we came a long way from our first game to the last. We pulled together and played as a team.

Sr. Robert Stroud

We pulled together and played to the best of our ability. We proved that Jones' "no-bicep athletes" had found a winning combination.

Jr. Jeff Phillips

The tears in everyone's eyes were proof that everybody cared and was hurt dramatically by the loss to Brewer.

Sr. T. J. Wilson

Coaches Jones and Alvarez did an excellent job of coaching because most of our team consisted of sophomores and juniors.

Sr. Mike Gordon

I think that most of us, at least the seniors, will always wonder what would have happened if we would have had the big inning that day. Nobody thought Crowley would be a threat. We proved them wrong.

Winning District, Again

The reason the J.V. baseball team had such a successful year is because you could count on all players to do their job when needed to.

Soph. Brian Phillips

I think that the greatest key to our success was consistent hitting. Our JV team hit the ball hard all year. We also had a great defense. With minimal errors, we were able to keep most teams under five points.

Soph. Ray Jack

I feel that the Freshman baseball season was successful. We got off to a rough start, but we pulled together to make it a winning season.

Fr. Jason Massengale

We got into ruts and played good ball only when we needed to.

Fr. Jerry Fortuna

We didn't get off to a big start, but then key people started hitting the ball. We came on strong at the end and had a winning season.

Golf Team Excels

I do not think any one person can take credit for this season's success. Golf is a difficult game to be played other than individually, but the members of our team worked together and displayed the discipline and the dedication that helped the team accomplish all but one of its goals. It was a season of great success and surpassed any and all prior records set by previous Crowley golf teams.

Sr. Todd Klaver

Our team's success can be credited not only to the students who participated, but also to the time and effort of Coach Wren. He sacrificed time, effort, and his family life in order to develop this year's team into a winning one. Without him, the team would probably not have excelled as much as it did. We greatly appreciate his efforts and thank him for his endless help.

Billy Eubanks

I personally think that golf is a challenging and exciting game to play. Although it is usually considered an individual sport, it can also be played as a team. This resulted in a year of great accomplishments. The only way a season like this can be repeated is by greater support from the athletic dept. and the administration. We will also need more golfers with the amount of talent and dedication this team had.

Another Year Another Sweepstakes

On Tuesday, April 19, the concert and symphonic bands went to UIL contest at Boswell High School. Under the direction of Mr. Weyland Rapp the concert band received a first division rating from the three judges in concert and sightreading which is sweepstakes. The choir season started off with the Constitution Bicentennial at which the Eagle choir sang proudly. Their next event was the Homecoming Parade. The choir did a 50's routine in which they received second place and a plaque for their efforts. The program at the First United Methodist Church was the choir's next big event.

The busiest time for the choir was Christmas. They sang at Town Center Mall and did their Christmas show at school. Next came UIL Solo and Ensemble Contest on February 27 at Arlington High School. Sophomore Jade Boyd received a first division rating and Freshman Tim Seckel received a second division.

Choir members are: Pres. Nicole Pandolfo, V.P. Brenda Manley and Laquita Watson, Sec. Jennifer Wright, Lib. Tim Seckel, Hist. There are twenty members to this year's choir and according to Mrs. Boyd, "The Crowley Choir will grow each year."

The Art of Creative Writing

Creative Writing is the creation of your own power of creating an originality of a thought. Judy Soriano head of the creative writing department, refers to what the students are doing as "Freehand of Art." "What we basically do in class is meet and write." It is open to anyone who has a creative mind and enjoys the art of writing. Some of the work they do is write short stories, or poetry.

Senior Paul Seabolt writes poetry and is said to be influenced by music in his writing. This is the first year for the club and Mrs. Soriano hopes it's not the last.

S hakespeare 3 out of 4

Out of the four years spent in high school, three of them are spent studying Shakespeare's literary works. Beginning with the Freshmen, it is Romeo and Juliet. Fr. Mark Arnold says, "I liked the movie better because it moved faster." Sophomore Jeff Brown said while reading Julius Caesar, "I wished that they would hurry up and kill him. It was too strung out." He added, "I would rather read more current stuff." Senior Kevin White said, "Macbeth is okay. I liked the transition from nice guy to crazed lunatic. I thought it was great." When asked about other Shakespearian plays, he replied, "The Taming of the Shrew was the best I've read, but I prefer reading Kurt Vonnegut, Jr., a current author."

Mrs. Franek, sophomore English teacher, said studying Shakespeare was necessary because "he's one of the most important playwrights in history. The scope of his writings is from romance to politics." Teachers as well as students find that Shakespeare can be entertaining and confusing at the same time.

I mprovisation Made Fun.

Students did improvisations which helped them understand how hard work it is to be an actor. Improvisations ranged from thievery to sneaking in bedroom windows. Ms. Kay Newberry would give the students an emotion, a country, and an animal. The students would have to create a scene so that each element would fit in. Senior Beau Gregory said, "It was really fun but you really had to think and at the same time you wanted it to be humorous." Freshman Tonya Reed said, "It requires a lot of quick thinking because most of the time, she gave us three minutes to think of something. I enjoyed it and plan on taking it next year."

Foreign Language Classes Swing into Action

The Spanish and French classes have set goals to try and use the language they practice in class on a day to day basis. In the halls you may hear a friendly word of bonjour or au revoir, as friends greet friends.

A new addition to the Foreign Language Department was a new T.V. and video tape player from the Spanish Club. These items added extras needed to enhance the understanding of French and Spanish. The students were able to observe the languages being used through movies.

During foreign language week, both French and Spanish classes made posters and buttons written in both languages. Posters were seen all through the halls. The French classes went to Le Cafe for dinner after school where they experienced the taste of real French food. In the Spanish classes they played Bingo. Some of the activities of the classes added zest to learning. Senior David Wissore said "This helps us learn the pronunciation and meaning of the Spanish terms."

All in all the students in both French and Spanish classes learned at least the basic of these two languages.

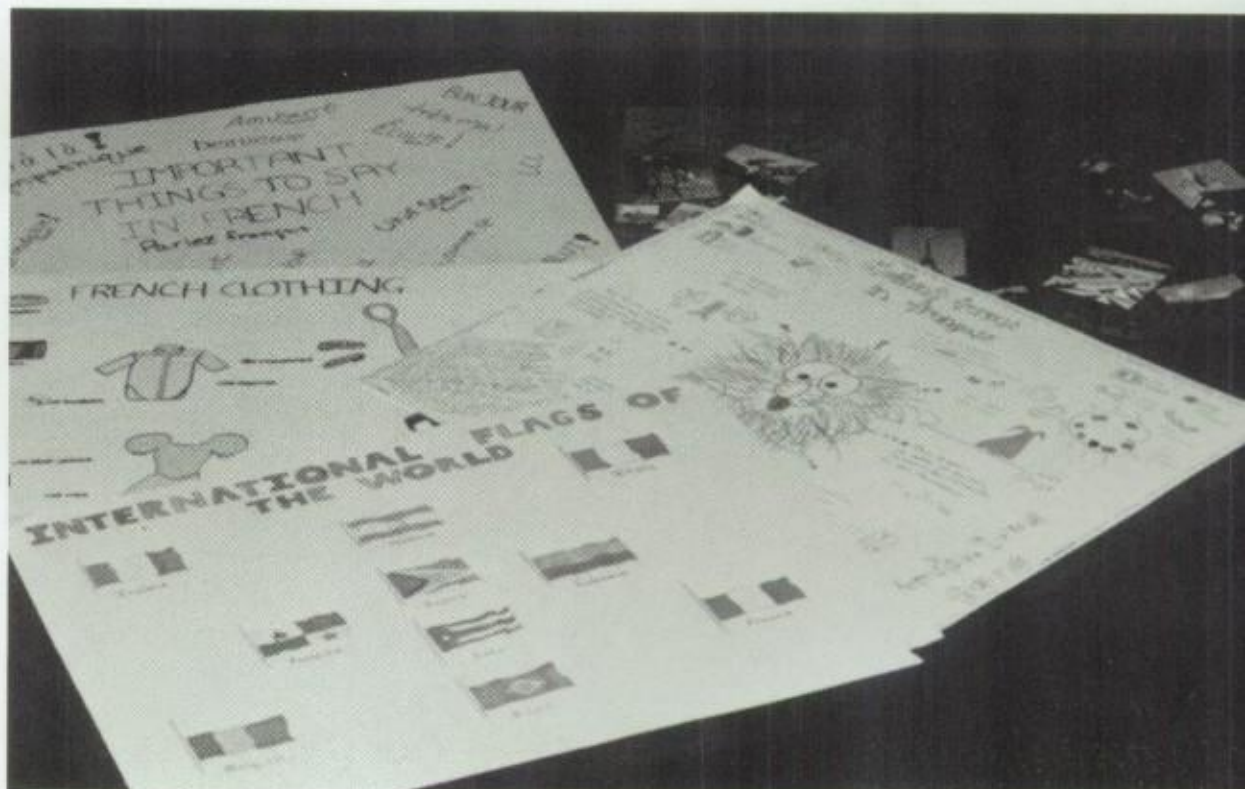

So walking down the hall a person would hear "Hola" (Spanish for hello) or "Au-Revoir" (French for good bye).

Science Students Go To Austin

The Texas Junior Science Engineering and Humanities Symposium (T.J.S.E.H.S.) was held in February on the campus of the University of Texas at Austin. Approximately 100 students from the State of Texas were chosen on a competitive basis to participate in this year's T.J.S.E.H.S. Three students entered their abstracts and all three were accepted. Junior Wendi Martin, and Sophomores Melissa Lofquist and Roxanne Izac wrote a 300 word abstract to go along with their science project. The students while at U.T. went to listen to professors and also toured the campus.

The Math Experience

Math classes always had situations where students were unable to comprehend what was going on. Algebra I and II, Geometry, Trigonometry, and Calculus sometimes made students wonder why they even bothered registering for the classes.

Trigonometry and Calculus seemed to cause students the most pain. To most people, trigonometry and calculus were a total chaos, because learning to work and graph sine, cosine, and tangent could be severely confusing. To others, however, it wasn't as hard as it seemed.

"I dropped all my Honors classes at semester except for trigonometry," said Junior Doug Hopkins, "it gets easier as you go along."

Students eventually found math classes to be worthwhile and said that the lessons and lectures would probably help them in the future.

Study The Past

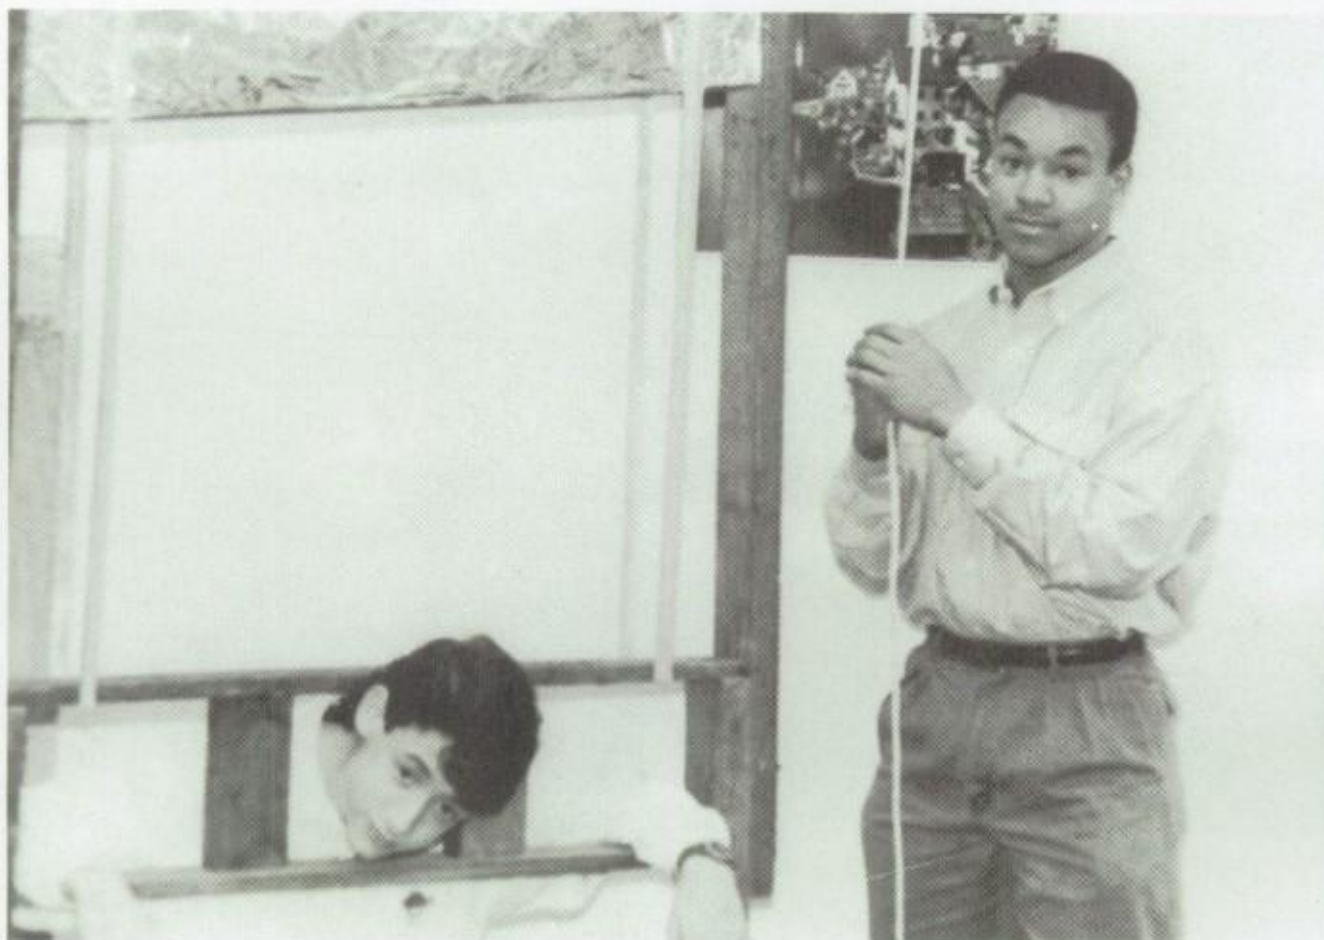

History is collectively known as the study of man, his culture, and civilization. Others might think history is just a waste of time dwelling on the past. To Mrs. Barbara Gregory, the head of the history dept., history is almost sacred. "It's a study of the world," Mrs. Gregory said, "man has attempted to make in the past, present, and future."

Students think history is a waste of time. Sting, the musician, wrote that "history will teach us nothing" but Mrs. Gregory says, "I like what H. G. Wells

Strange Behavior

Sociology is a class someone basically takes for 1.) filling up his or her designated schedule or 2.) they are actually interested in taking it. Unfortunately, most people take it for the first of the two reasons.

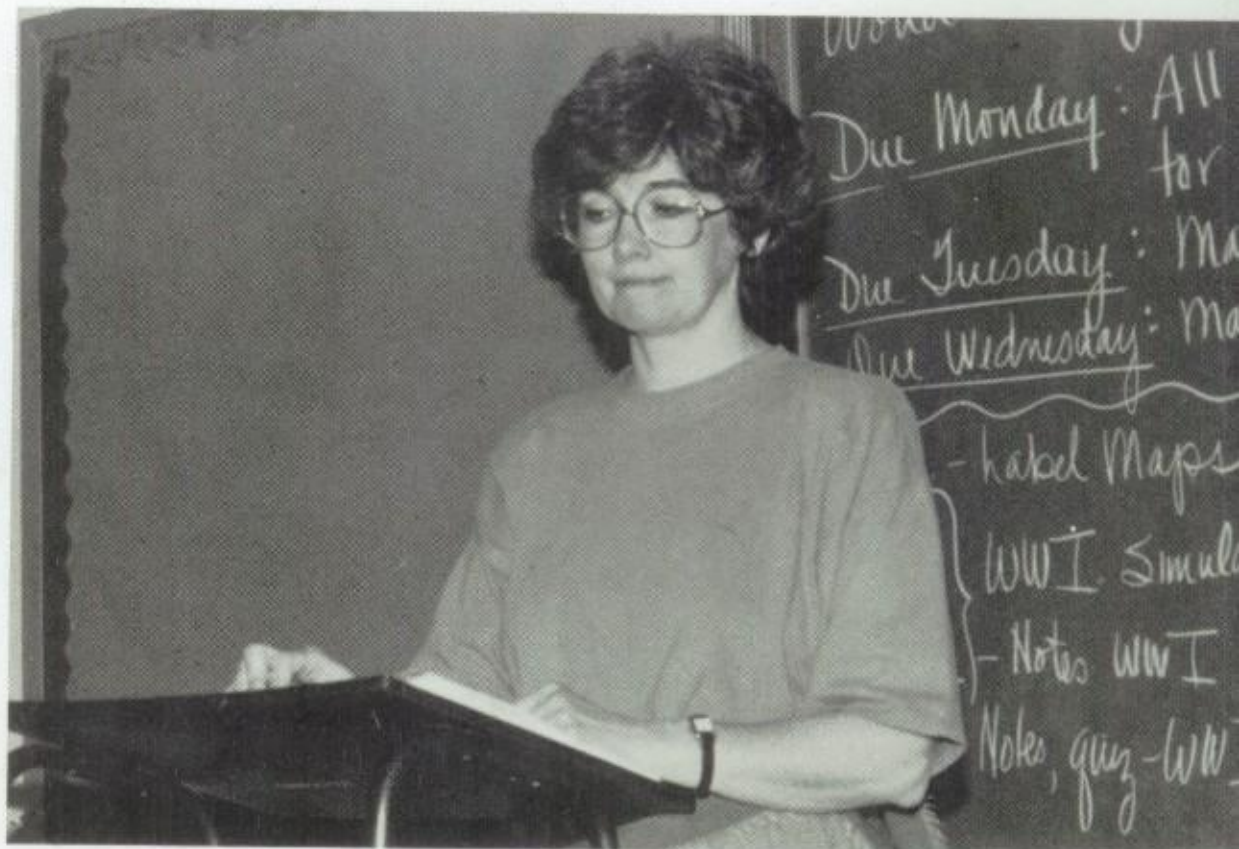

Sociology is defined as being the study of patterns of human behavior. Mrs. Barbara Gregory, the teacher of this subject, says, "I think it's the chance to examine what makes us the way we are." Mrs. Gregory has been teaching sociology for 14 years.

One question that may pass through one's mind is whether or not this course is useful. "It makes you realize how things came the way they are," said Mrs. Gregory, "and how they change."

So, in all, sociology is an interesting class with all the stories and facts that one could accumulate.

▼ Taking time out from a strenuous activity, Sr. Tony Miller shows off his sociological skills. Students in sociology were asked questions that would solve someone's behavior problems.

Our Business

Some students dream of going to college and then becoming professionals. Some of these students also think that business classes might somehow aid them on their way through college and perhaps the real world.

The business courses consist of classes such as Personal Business Management (PBM), accounting, typing, computers, word processing, and economics. All these classes teach a student how to balance a checkbook, how to budget salaries, how to program computers and other activities.

Under the direction of teachers like Mr. Burger, Mrs. Elliot, and Mrs. Gray, Mrs. Hall and Mrs. Martinez, these classes were enjoyable.

Making of a Masterpiece

Walking down a hallway, you hear the chatter of students and the crashing of chairs. The closer one approaches the more vivid the scenario becomes. You have just entered Room 302.

This is no ordinary room as you can plainly see. The walls are decorated in murals ranging from rock stars to Nagel. The floors and tables are scattered with paper, paint, and clay, but amid all the debris stands the statuesque Mr. Jim Mitchell.

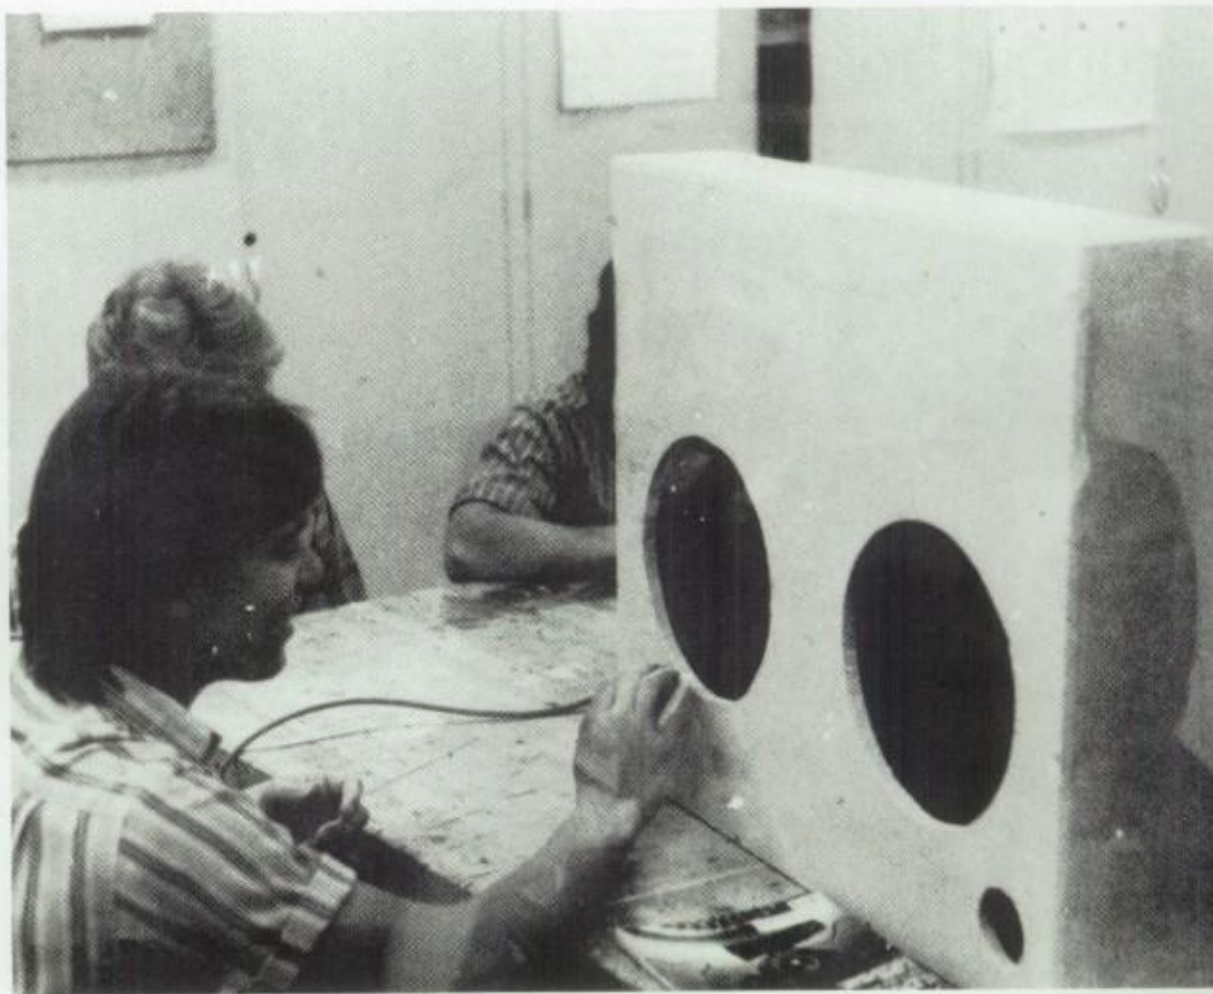

In this battle of creativity Mr. Mitchell is not alone. Along with companions Mrs. Williams and Mr. Strickland the art and shop department strove to greater heights. classes such as drafting, metals, and wood deal with more of a basic know-how than freedom of creativity.

All of these classes, however, taught a skill. Students learned how to sketch faces and build simple wood, plastic, and metal objects. These skills will last for more than a lifetime.

During the course of a day, many things happen in this class. Sometimes some of the girls practice styling on some of the other girls. Other times customers come in, and still other times a grade of some kind is given.

Every Friday morning, women from the community come in. The girls really enjoy making them happy. Senior Amy Bills said, "I really enjoy Friday mornings when the ladies from our community come in and get their hair fixed. They like to come in and open up about certain things going on in their lives and in our community. I like to be there for them and also make them feel and look better."

Accepting The Fitness Challenge

When students enrolled in Health and Physical Education classes, many were unsure of what they were getting themselves into.

To some, Physical Education meant strenuous workouts without any breaks. But in actuality, the class turned out to be more fun than they had expected.

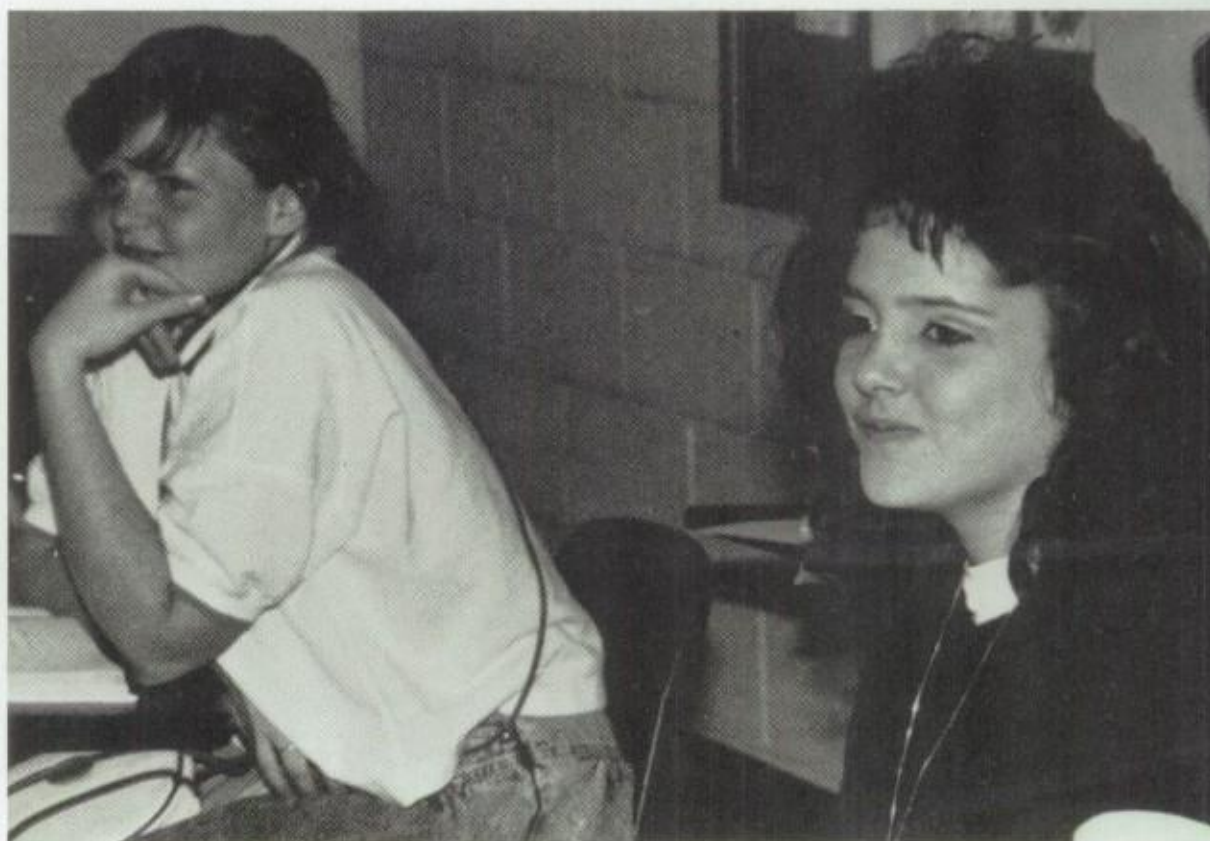

Physical Education involved many areas of exercise and fitness; from aerobics to weightlifting. Students in Fit and Figure were able to do jump rope routines and gymnastics also.

There was an overall positive outlook towards the entire department by students, and many have registered for the classes again next year.

He gained the appreciation and respect of many peers and students and greatly deserves the 1987-88 award of Mr. C.H.S.

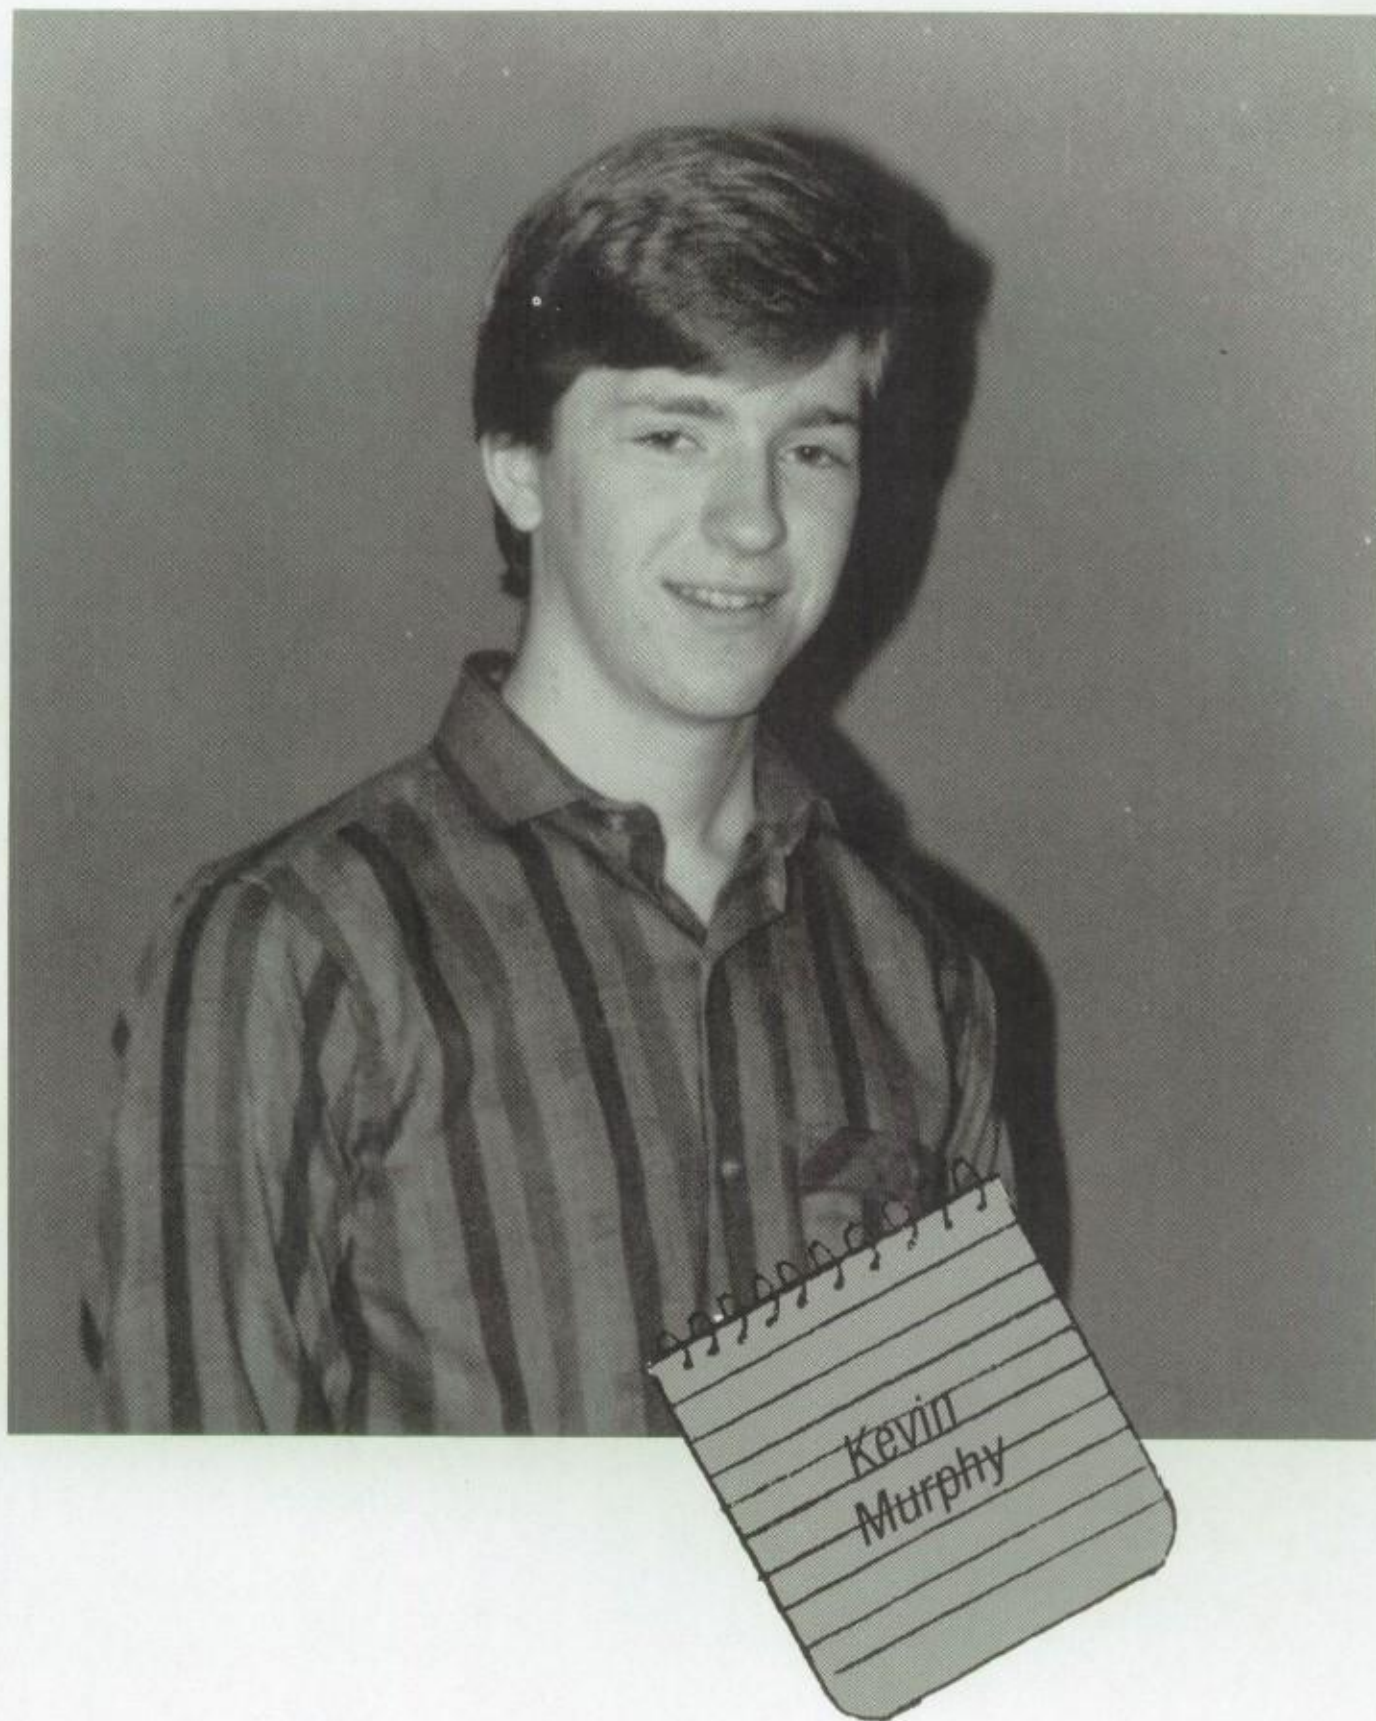

Miss Crowley High

Amy Smith

Amy Smith has always been very involved and well liked student. During her freshman and sophomore years she was a junior varsity cheerleader, while her junior and senior years she was a Talonette and served as the organizations chaplain. Amy was involved in several drama productions throughout high school and was also one of the only girls in Crowley's history to be a Homecoming princess all four years. During her junior year she was inducted into National Honor Society and as a senior she was voted Most Considerate, Friendliest, and Class Favorite. She cheered many people up when they were down and because of her kindness and scholarship she deserves to be Miss C.H.S. 1987-88.

Kevin Murphy is a respected member of the student body who maintains a G.P.A. of 4.428 and has also been named Valedictorian.

Kevin plans to attend Texas A&M University where he will major in Aerospace Engineering. When asked why he chose that school and particular major, Kevin replied, "I am very interested in planes and how they work. I felt that A&M would give me the best education in that field."

Kevin has received a number of honors during his high school career. Included in this long list of honors is being named in Who's Who Among American High School Students.

When Kevin was asked if he was surprised to be named valedictorian, he said, "No, it came as no real surprise. I had been thinking about it for the past two years." His most challenging class was physics; it is also his favorite. "I am interested in physics so that makes learning the material easier."

Kevin Murphy has a well-deserved head start as he goes off to college. He strived, and reached an important goal. His family, friends and classmates are proud of him.

Valedictorian

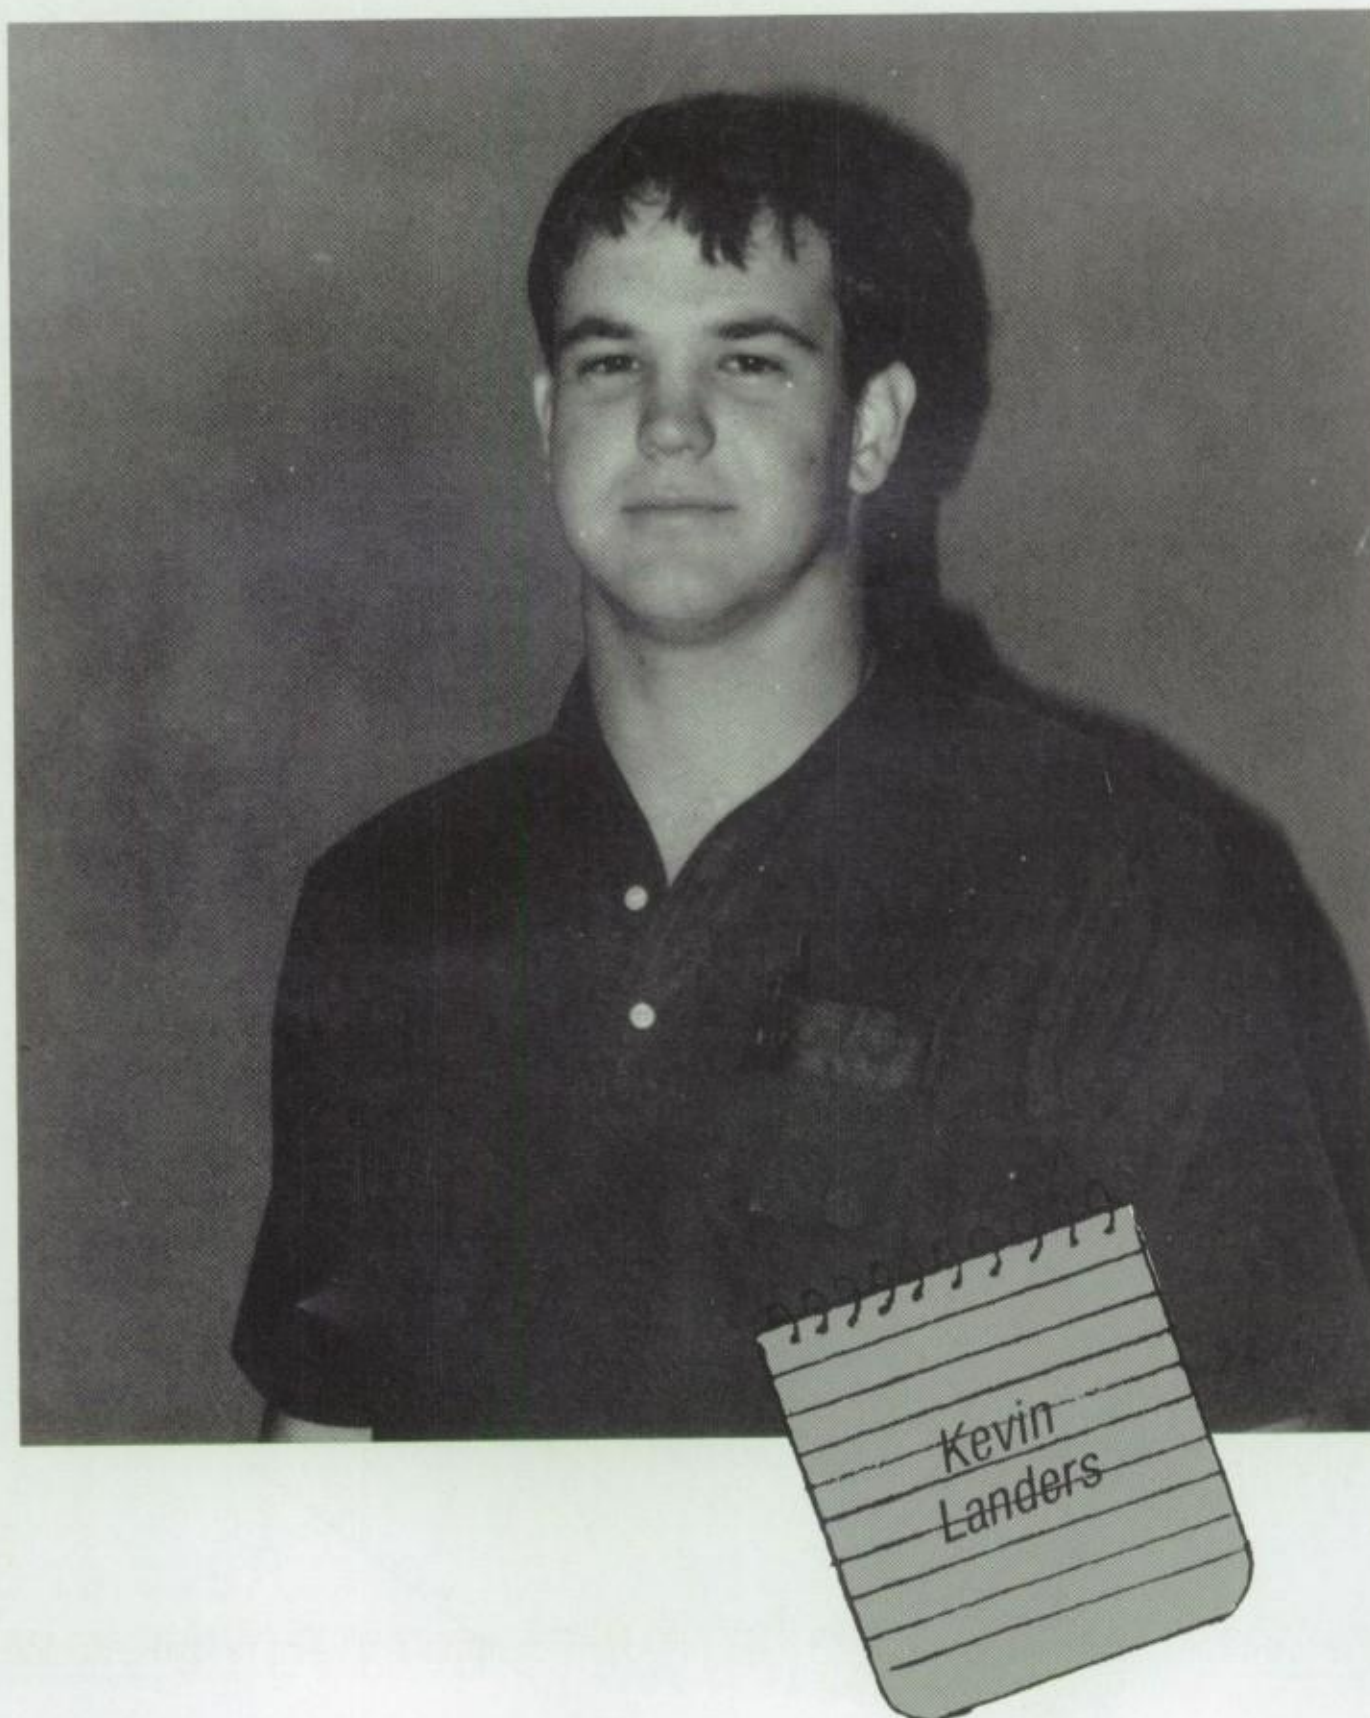

Salutarian

Kevin Landers is a popular figure with the students. He participated in J.V. and Varsity Football, as well as power lifting. In spite of all of his extra-curricular activities, Kevin maintained a G.P.A. of 4.428 and has been named Salutarian. He has been a member of the National Honor Society for two years and is also listed in Who's Who Among American High School Students. Kevin has received an appointment to the U.S. Air Force Academy in Colorado Springs, Colorado where he will continue his education in the fall.

Despite Kevin's academic achievements he still claims that he does not enjoy English. When asked why, he promptly replied, "There is too much writing, and the reading is out of date and useless!"

Kevin has worked hard for his honors during the past four years. He has shown his classmates and others that he can push for the best. Through his hard work and determination, Kevin has set for himself a promising future.

How Embarrassing!

Have you ever walked into the wrong bathroom? Have you ever run down the hall and tripped and fell on your face? Have you ever gone to the wrong class for no apparent reason? Derek Davis has. "I was supposed to go to English, but for some strange reason I grabbed my Health book and went to third instead of second. I ended up in the wrong room. I was doing some homework with people I'd never seen. Then it hit me. I'm in the wrong room! So I went up to the teacher and told him of my predicament. He said it was all right; nevertheless, I was still embarrassed."

Whatever the case may be, embarrassing moments are a part of everyone's life.

Freshman Derek Davis told us all about his most embarrassing moment.

In Trouble? Freshman Elechia Saal is either being sent from the room or is taking a test.

Did we wake you? Freshman Shannon Davis appears to be still asleep. Shannon just woke up on the band bus after the long trip to Austin.

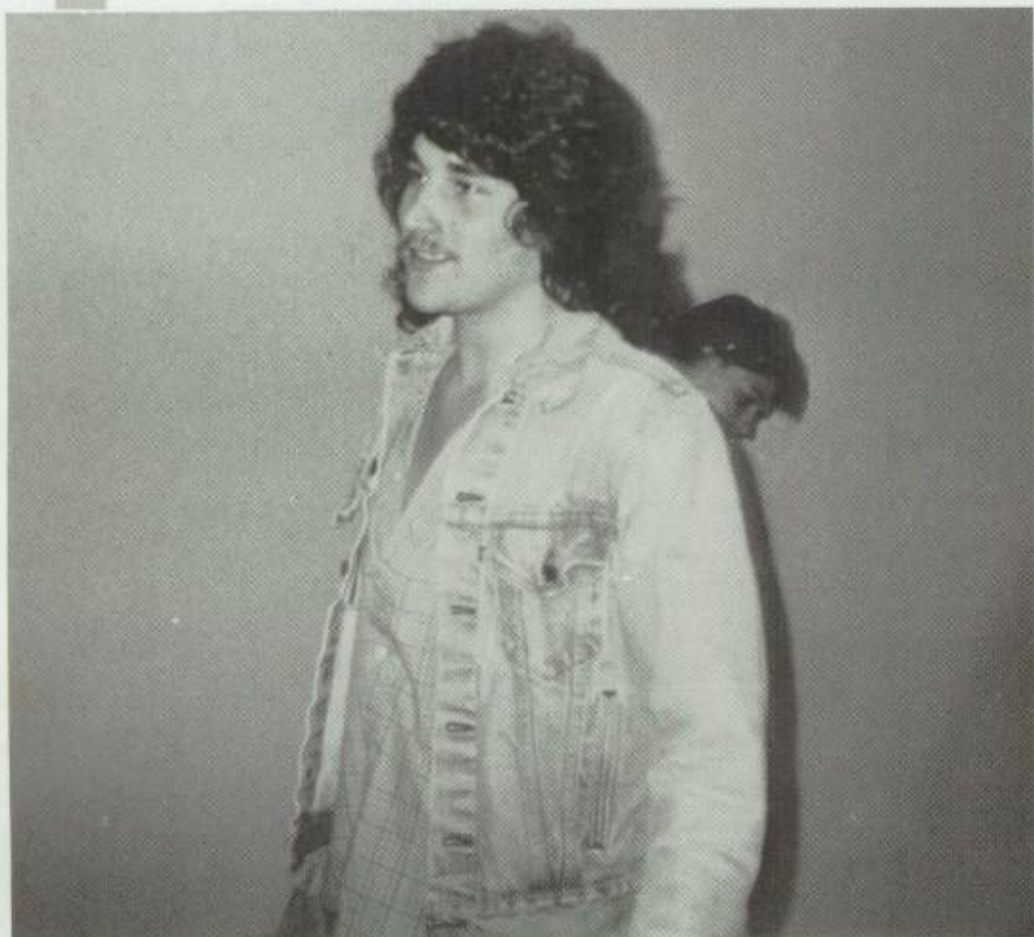

Being Different

"There's nothing wrong with it!" — Lisa Milkler

A trend is being set by a rather large group of students, dominantly freshmen, who are trying to make a statement by being unique. Some have called them crazy, wavers, neo-hippies, or just plain off the wall. Chris Combest says, "Non-conformity is a state of mind that one can only achieve through their own personal beliefs; conformity is an invisible means of support." Whatever the case may be, they definitely turned some heads at Crowley High.

Off the wall! Fr. Chris Combest shows what it takes to be himself. At times, he could be seen playing guitar in the bathrooms.

Fr. Frank Peterson walks casually around the halls. He believed firmly in the one work-day week, and as of the fourth week of the second semester, he had attended school once.

Calling it quits, David Ranck and Ricky Hillman take one last look at the halls of Crowley before venturing into the real world. They checked back in the following semester.

Freshmen Spirit

This year's Freshmen were loaded with spirit. To much surprise, the class of '91 became a dominant force in the race for the spirit stick. For the first time in many years, the freshmen class won the spirit stick more than any other class. The amount of noise coming from their section seemed to leave the other classes dumbfounded. It made for some great pep rallies as the other classes had to yell even louder to compete with the chanting freshmen. The class of '91 showed some first-class spirit.

Rallying Support! Freshman Cheerleader Kerri Owen urges on the JV football team as an admirer looks on.

Fish! Even as they leave the gym, their spirit still lingers. For a change, the freshmen didn't seem to mind the term "Fish."

Spirit! Let's hear it!! The roaring freshmen hope for another spirit stick.

SAC

SAC is a quiet environment for those people who seem to get into some kind of trouble. This year has been a great year for SAC, but for some people it's a home away from home. According to Sophomore David Odom, "SAC feels relaxing." Not only Sophomores spend time in SAC, but Juniors and Seniors too. Senior Todd Klaver replies, "I hate it, it bored me!" Junior Becky Poulos says, "It's Boring!" Although SAC is designated to teach students a lesson, Ty Stence says, "It's like a prison with a teacher!"

"Sophomore Slump"

"Sophomore Slump" is a phrase frequently used to describe the boring yet busy Sophomore year. But is that the way it really is? Being a second year high schooler gives students the feeling of being one step ahead. It's fun to watch the Freshmen make the same mistakes and another advantage is that you can finally get your driver's license. Sophomore Nicole Dunlavy says, "Being able to drive to school is much more interesting than having to take the crummy bus." "You also get more freedom and can stay out later on the weekends," says Malise Taylor. The Sophomore Slump can make the year very busy for the Graduates of '90. Being burdened with a full schedule barely leaves us room to breathe; nevertheless, being a Sophomore is a fun experience.

RED LIGHT ETIQUETTE

Now that juniors and seniors have had their driver's licenses for at least a year and have had experience behind the wheel, they have put together a list of things to do at a red light.

"Undo my seat belt, hit the parking brake, and scramble through my tapes." — Kyle Payne, Jr.

"I make faces at little kids or blow kisses at old ladies." — Chris Jaso, Jr.

"I usually look around for chicks." — Lance Koppa.

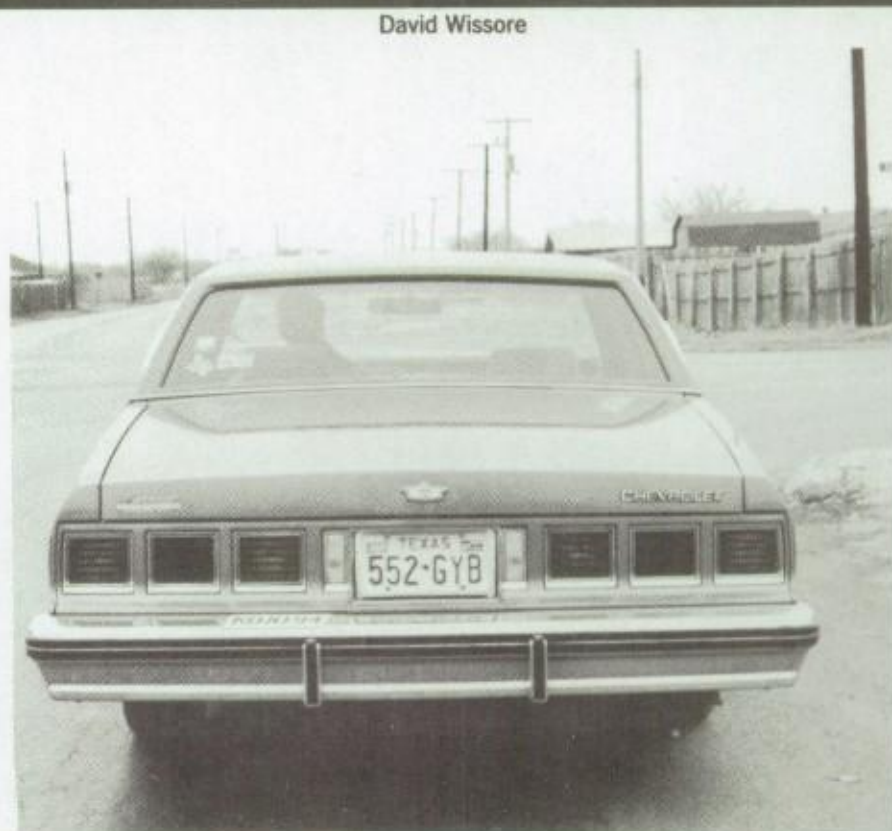

"Look to the right to see if there is a cute guy and if there is I brush my hair." — Heather Adair, Sr.

"I never wait." — Daniel Hurtado, Sr.

"If I do anything, I mess with my bitchin' sound system." — Tony Miller, Sr.

"I usually kiss my girlfriend." — James Rose, Sr.

"I look for attractive people of the opposite sex." — Benjamin Fujihara, Sr.

Juniors and Their Jobs

Most Juniors at Crowley High School are doing more than just attending school; they also work.

Whether it is fast food restaurants, movie theatres, or the mall, Juniors are making money, from $3.25 to $4.00 an hour working twenty to thirty hours a week. Juniors say they can handle a job and full-time school because they think about all the benefits they receive. "It feels good to have your own money rather than asking your parents for some," says Brenda Manley, who works at Winn Dixie. It also gives Juniors a chance to get out of the house; you can also go shopping when you get paid and make payments on fixed items. "The work is more enjoyable when you work with your friends," says Pam Manashe, a junior who works at Taco Bell, "it provides a warmer atmosphere that most Juniors want," says Michelle Jackson.

But working can also be hectic and stressful at times especially when working for five to eight hours a night then coming home tired, wondering whether or not you should attempt to do your homework. "Usually I forget about it, and go to sleep," says Junior Kelly Fisher. This can interfere with school work; they're tired and can catch only half the information given to them in class.

But whatever the outcome may be, when there is a job to be done, a Junior is the one.

s. Nicki Daniels and Robin Dunnam take a break during home. At the beginning of every six weeks, students had to report to homeroom to receive report cards.

▲ Getting a lift to second period, Jr. and ½'s Chris Jaso and Doug Tracy wander aimlessly through the halls. The term Jr. and ½ is for those students who are classified as juniors but become seniors after the first semester.

Class of '88

Preparing to Graduate

The class of '88, though anxious to graduate, had a lot to do in order to prepare for the June first date. It all started in August when each senior had their pictures made. About three weeks later, they sat for hours deliberating over which ones to order.

Then the wild frenzy of their senior year really hit. With the start of classes, even more money had to come out of parents' and students' pockets alike. In early February, seniors ordered their graduation announcements and keepsakes. Some only spent $30 while others spent $100 or more. Senior Liska Lewis said, "I didn't expect my mom to order as much as she did, but I guess you only graduate from high school once."

In April the word "prom" was in the air. Another prominent word during this time was "broke." Senior Debra Mauldin said, "Prom really was expensive, but the fun and magic of the night made it priceless."

Then in May, the pressure really hit. Everyone was stressed over passing every class and their coming exams. Senior Bryan Estess said, "I think Ross Perot was stupid to take the possibility of exempting exams for honor students. There should be some sort of reward."

However, there were some fun events in May. The senior trip to Texas 'Lil

Senior officers Bobby Mosteller, Kate Yelverton, Tim Atchison, and Brad McCone are an important link to the other members of the class. They planned senior events and helped bring the class together.

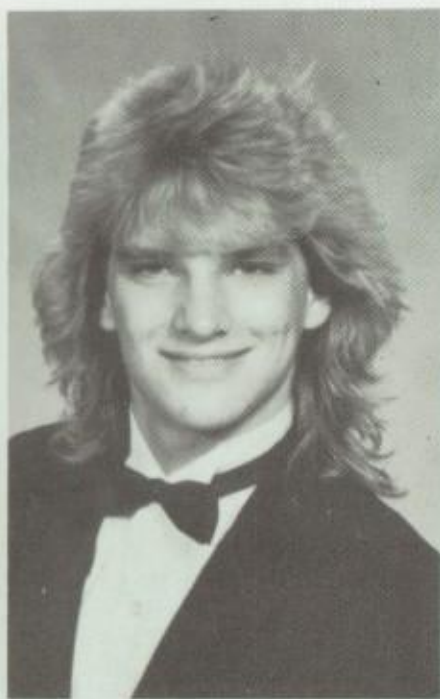

Dude Ranch and Baccalaureate were fun filled days, but they also made each senior realize that their time together was limited.

Finally the night of graduation arrived. After the ceremony, all the graduates hugged each other and passed many wishes of good luck. Senior Dee Richardson said, "I wish the class of '89 good luck but remember to cherish every moment of your senior year!"

"Senior romance is an effect of hormones more than brains," says Bob Burger. Can this actually be true? Perhaps it was fate or maybe one's destiny to fall in love with somebody. This once in a lifetime person is someone whom one can share innermost feelings with, give support to and care for. This person is widely acknowledged as the boyfriend or girlfriend. To seniors, a relationship such as this can become hectic with graduation and choosing a school to venture off to.

Ty Stence said, "I think that they (relationships) should not be allowed, because our senior year is meant to be fun." Senior romances to others can be exciting as to Michele Kelty who said, "I had some fun and enjoyable times. It's just when you have someone in a senior romance you can never really forget." There are other seniors who become completely ecstatic about romance. Mary Kroenung says, "I think it's great, because I've got John (Pruett)."

Senior romance can be a heart-ache to others. Senior Liska Lewis said, "Senior romances are great when other people and confused feelings don't get in the way." Then there are seniors such as Alicia Cox who say, "I think senior romances are a bum deal! Most of my friends have become real serious and so it's hard to find someone single to party with."

After all the seniors have gone far from this school, do you think that the romance will last or at least a friendly relationship? Jerome Flores sums it up in three simple words: "I hope so!"

Picture Perfect

Last summer when several of her friends told her that she was very photogenic, Tina Gess never imagined that their comments would lead to the beginning of a modeling career. "I received a flyer from John Robert Powers for a free evaluation, so I decided to go. I figured that it could do no harm."

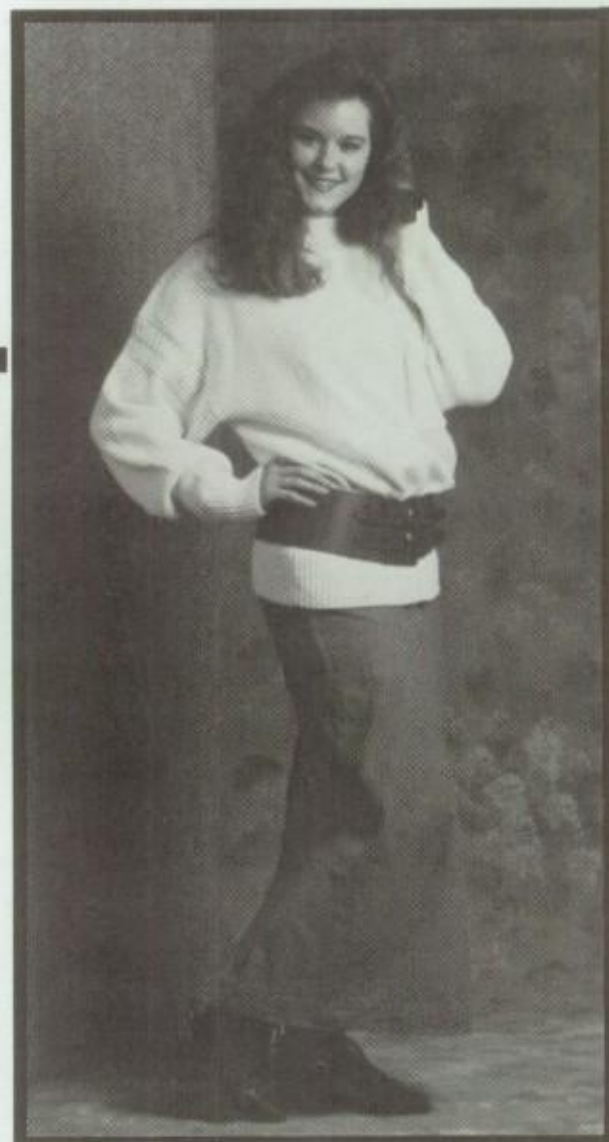

After this evaluation, Tina became more and more interested in modeling. "I went back to John Robert Powers and decided to attend school there."

She took a 28 week course which was broken down into a class every Saturday from nine to five. In these classes, basics of modeling, wardrobe coordination, and make-up classes were taught.

Near the end of the classes, Tina participated in several photo shoots, volunteer jobs, and some promotional work just for experience. Then came her first real job. "It was showcase modeling for a medical convention. I worked for three hours after school and was shocked to find out that I had been paid $50 an hour!"

Since then, Tina has had no jobs, but she has become involved with the Town Center Fashion Board. She plans to pursue modeling part-time next year as she attends college. In closing Tina said, "Although I enjoy modeling very much, I am not considering it as a full-time career."

First Period Dozers

The Senior class is not known for its long attention span during classes. In fact, it is not a rare sight to catch one face down on a table dozing off. The most popular class, it seems, for Seniors to sleep in, is first period. We talked to a few of these first period dozers and here is what they said . . .

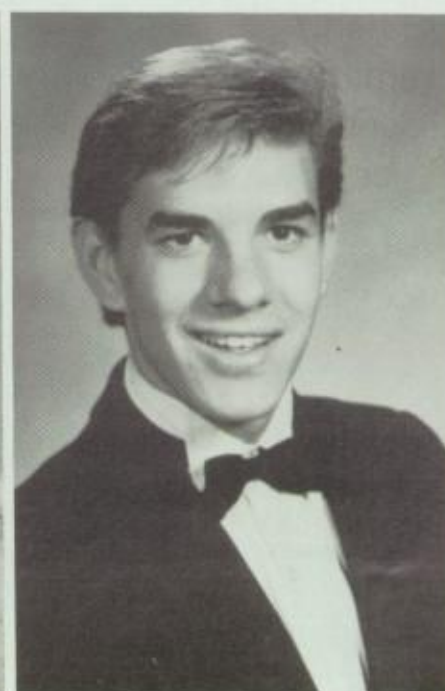

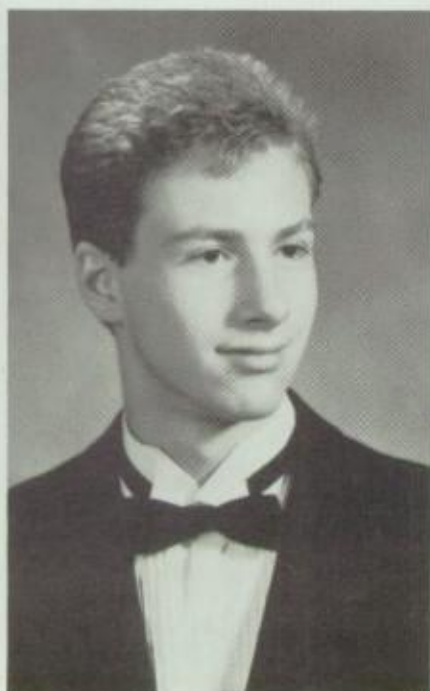

Michael Gordon — "During first period, the gravitational pull on my head is so great that I am forced to lay my head down on the table, and I occasionally doze off."

Julie Stacy — "I'm still asleep during first period because I never actually wake up. Plus it's Senior English; that's not worth waking up for."

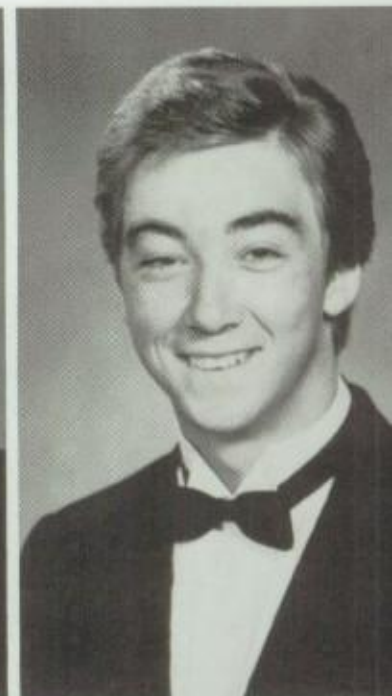

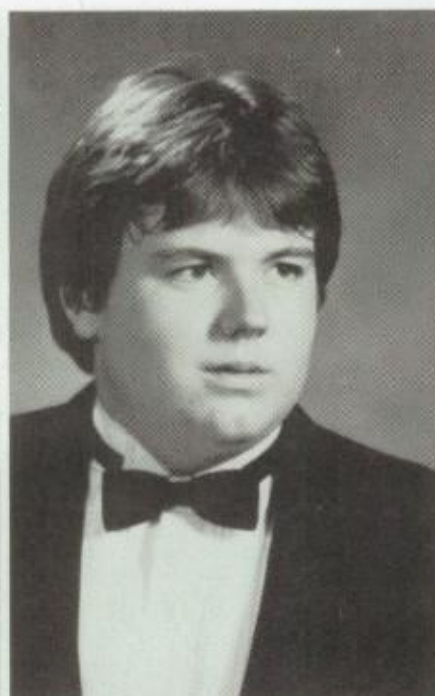

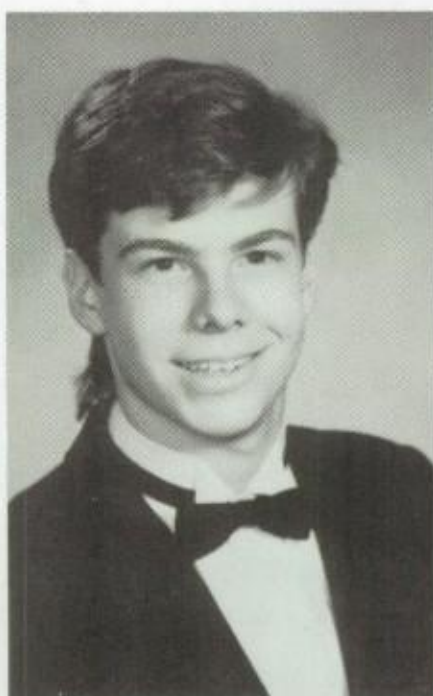

Stuart Minnis — "The routine excitement of my first period physics class slackened slightly the day after the Rush concert. I had quite a bit of trouble staying conscious while Mr. Wynne elaborated on the fascinating world of subatomic particles. Geddy, Alex, and Niel [Rush band members] kept my attention a little better."

Built for the Future

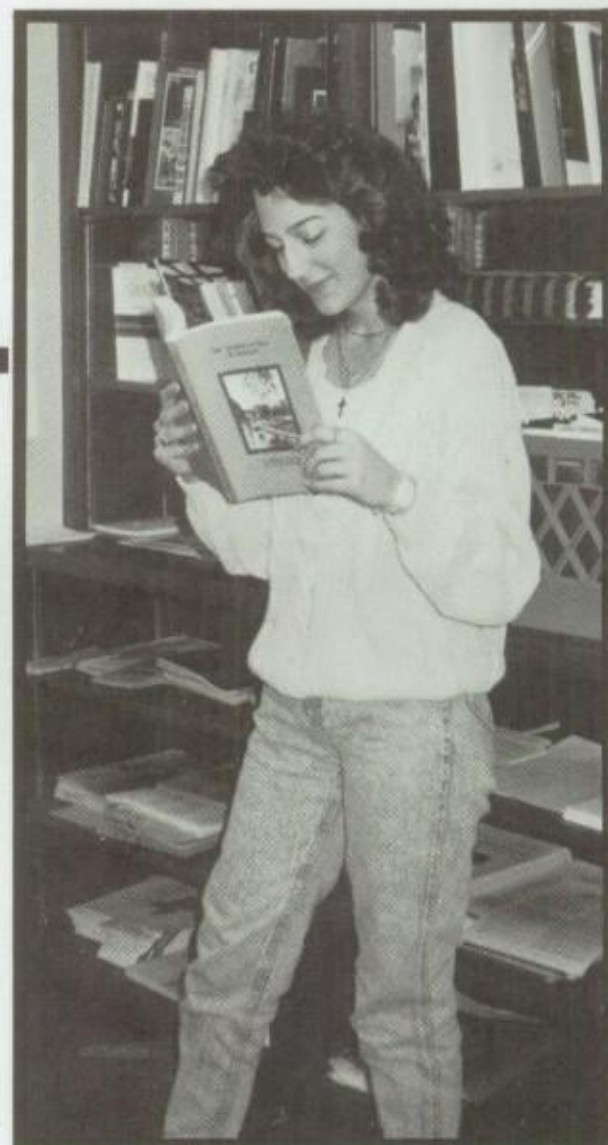

Decisions . . . Seniors are somehow drawn into a void of decisions which must be made. Some of these are major decisions and will haunt the senior during his or her entire year. Most seniors will agree the greatest decision is whether or not to go to college. Another decision that is parallel to that of going to college is what to major in when you get there.

Sally Roberts said, "I plan to go to college, but I am not sure where to go. Whatever college I do pick though, I want to major in either psychology, political science, or pre-law. After college, I plan to attend a law school."

Some seniors have not only decided whether or not to go to college, but they have also chosen what activities to involve themselves in. Sheila Uhr said, "I plan to attend TCU and major in elementary education. For about 3½ months I have been training to become a TCU cheerleader and will continue my training for another year. Then I will try out."

When these seniors reach their final destination they have one final major decision . . . where to live. This burning question could affect the graduate for the rest of his or her life. Stuart Minis said, "I am condemned to live at home due to lack of funds." There are others that have already made the proper arrangements. "I have plans to live at Colby Dorm," replies Sheila Uhr, "which is an all girls dorm at TCU." Then there are others such as Daniel Hurtado who say, "I don't know yet, but I have to take what I can get due to late registration."

Though some seniors may be able to take the full impact of graduation, all will agree that today's senior is built for the future.

Juniors and a Half

A few would-be seniors did not quite make it last year. So, once again, they were classified as Jrs. We like to refer to these as Jr.½. We interviewed a few of these students and here is what they said . . .

Q. Many people who fail do not like to admit it. How do you feel about this?

A. Chris Jaso — "We just take things as they come and try to have fun. The more open we are about it, the more natural we feel."

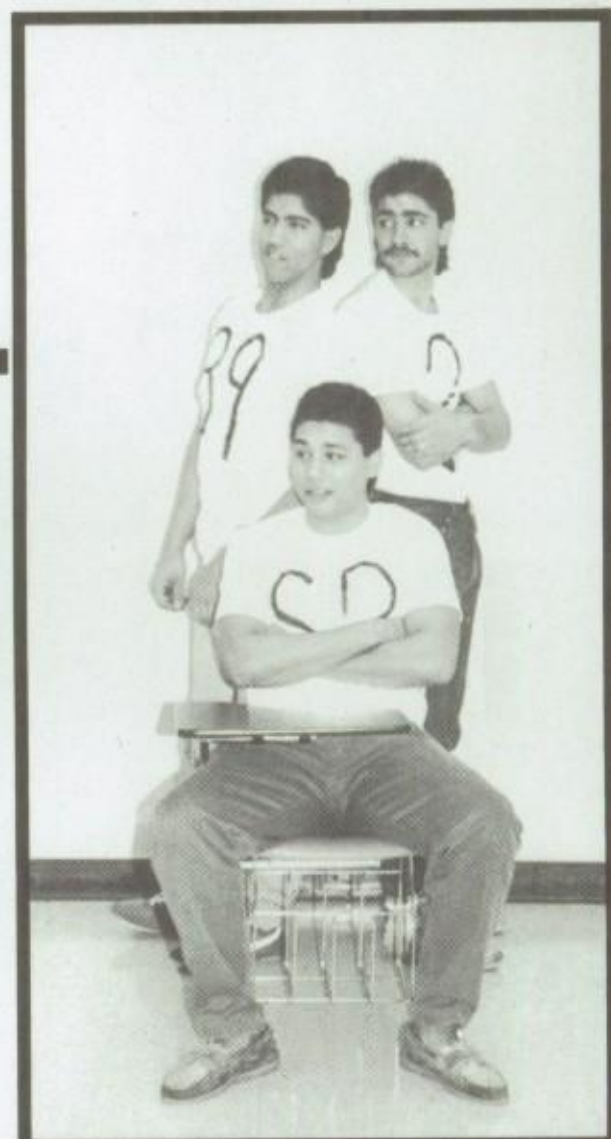

A. Donnie Harwell — "We can't be ashamed of it. If we can deal with it, other people will accept the fact that we didn't pass."

Q. How does it feel to be called a Junior for the second year in a row?

A. Donnie Harwell — "I just miss not having my friends in my classes."

A. Chris Jaso — "I agree with Donnie. I'd also like to tell the Senior class that we still think that the class of 88 is the best, to pray for us, and to be patient; we will make it."

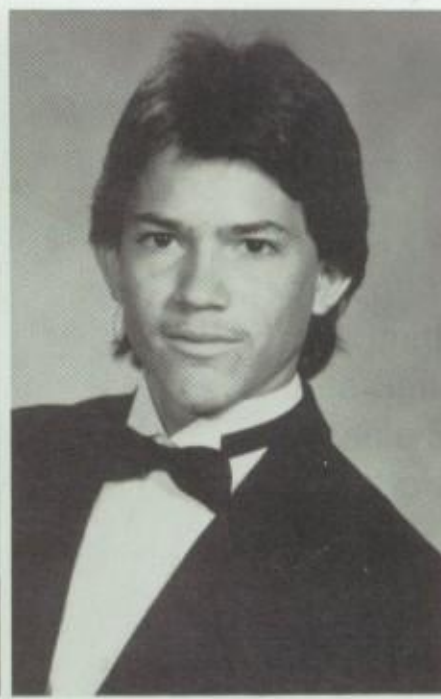

A. Darrell Reeves — "All of my friends know that I'm supposed to be a Senior so that doesn't bother me. The worst part will be sitting through graduation and watching my friends graduate knowing that I could have been there. After all the partying and congrats are over, I probably won't see them anymore. They'll be gone."

Hand Picked By You

Senior awards have been a tradition for a number of years. Each year the Talon Staff adds a new award; this year it was the "Most Considerate" category. About thirty seniors were nominated by their peers and about a dozen went on to be hand picked by their own class to win awards. The class of 1988 was well represented with each award.

Kelly Guiles, Sr., is handed her Talon Award for Class Clown by Talon Staff members Andrea Malone, Jr., and Sr. Bobby Touchton. The Talon Award glass was the idea of yearbook advisor Paula Martinez.

We Were There at the Beginning

✓ Checked Out.

The days turned into weeks, the weeks turned into months and months soon became one very fast school year. Towards the end, phone numbers were exchanged and plans were made as students took vows to keep in touch with each other.

As the seniors realize their high school years had just come to a close, juniors started making plans for their future . . . only one short year away.

► Ready to play, Sr. Jeff Steele waits for the director's signal. The band performed the 100th anniversary of the capitol of Texas parade in Austin.

We Were There Through the End

Freshmen were glad to be one step higher as they reached sophomore-dom and the sophomores were happy to just be upperclassmen.

Whether their high school career was coming to a close or at the beginning, emotions were strong as the final day grew nearer. Tears of joy to be out for vacation were mixed with tears of sadness to leave close friends behind as everyone checked out for the summer.

Enjoying the evening, Sr. Karen Smith and Jr. Roger Corn dance to the music. After graduation Karen plans to attend the University of North Texas.

Making memories, the seniors gather on stage to sing their class song. The seniors and the student body donated the money from the show to Jacob Lemke's family.

Showing his fangs, Soph. Mike Farris takes time to pose for the camera. This was Mike's first year at Crowley.

Having fun in class, Seniors Lance Koppa and Mark Greene watch Miss Williams set up their next assignment. This was the first year the art department had two teachers.

Fighting the winter weather, Sr. Neal Padgett scrapes the ice off his windows. Students were dismissed early because of weather conditions.
